WELCOME TO MUARA!
With the town’s early developments stemming from its coal-mining beginnings, Museums were once home to a luxurious coal era called the Brunei Colliery in the late 1800s up until its closing in 1924. Its success was responsible for the growth in transport and infrastructure development within the area as well as the growing population of local miners and their families.

Today, the town is a bustling town of Museums, located at the north-easternmost part of Brunei, is known for its many treasure troves and historical landmarks that are worth exploring.

From fun on the beach, meals with a view, a hike up to a panoramic view and picturesque locations – there’s plenty of adventure, discovery and relaxation to be had in Muara town!
Marine Biodiversity

Before the discovery of kapok (Bombaceae) trees in the village, the early settlers of Kapok Village were engaged in peaceful pursuits like fishing, harvest, and trade. However, the village was regularly flooded during the rainy season due to the collapse of these trees that were more comfortable to inhabit. The village was then named Kapok Village, and until today, these kapok trees can still be found around former penan and banat tampanian houses.

In Kapok Village, these villagers share the joys of a close-knit community life and all visitors are welcome with open arms.

Muara Beach

Muara Beach is a beachfront area in the town of Muara Besar. It is a popular spot for both locals and tourists. The beach is dotted with cafes and restaurants offering a variety of foods, including fresh seafood.
